WINSelect Helps Domino's Pizza Maintain Employee Productivity

Domino's Pizza recently placed computers in employee break rooms so that employees could access the company Intranet for resources such as company benefits, payroll information, and company announcements.

Problem: Employees were taking too much time on the computers provided in the break rooms. They were surfing the Internet and using applications that were not authorized by management. The employees were also changing the Windows settings which increased the number of IT support related visits.

Solution: Deploying WINSelect on employee break room computers enabled Domino's Pizza to completely lock down the systems as Intranet kiosks. Printing and application access was disabled, which meant employees could no longer surf the Internet and access unauthorized web sites. They were also blocked from using applications that were not authorized for use in this environment.

The result was that employees used workstations for their intended company purposes, and returned back to work on time. The number of IT support requests also dropped, as employees could no longer change the Windows system settings.
